ALVAH D. MEYER

SINGLETON-ZIMPFER WEDDING IS SOLEMNIZED.

On Wednesday morning, Dec. 28, at 11:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Singleton, 2206 Taylor Street, Miss Lora Singleton and F. A. Zimpher were united in marriage.

In the reception room beautiful Christmas decorations carried out the holiday idea, and at the appointed hour the French doors behind which an arch of smilax and holly was arranged, were opened by little Masters John Ed and Stanley Blackburn, revealing the bridal party, who stood for the ceremony in front of a bank of feathered green ferns and palms.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. R. Thomsen, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride was dressed in a handsome trousseau of mid-night blue evening cloth with accessories to match, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Daley Martin of Waco, with the bride's brother, H. M. Singleton, acting as best man.

After the ceremony refreshments were served and the happy couple left on an extended wedding trip and will be at home to their friends after Feb. 1.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Singleton and is prominent in the business and social circles of the city. The groom is district manager for the Southwestern Portland Cement Company of El Paso.

CROSSETT HOME.

One of the prettiest children's parties of the holiday season was staged Tuesday evening, when little Miss Louise and Woodson Harris entertained a large number of their friends with a Christmas party at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Walter Crossett, 1605 Madison Street.

Gay sprigs of holly, mistletoe and other decorations appropriate to the season were arranged about the entertaining rooms while a merry group of children enjoyed a series of interesting games and contests until a late hour when refreshments of marshmallow cream and wafers were served to the following: Sybil Buckingham, Louise Worrell, Ellen Bailey Dixon, Ernestine Williams, Odilia Sanford, Eva Thompson, Anna Joe DeWall, Emma Dumansky, June Kohler, Katherine McElroy, Maxine Rhodes, Bonnie Britain, Juanita Henderson, Lucile Pringle, Elizabeth Granberry, Elizabeth Chandler, Caroline McQuistian, Edgar Britain, Walter Elder, Wallace Dixon, Harry Worrell, Edward and Willie Mack Gibson, Patsy Britain of Canyon, Herman Nosslage.

A LESSON IN HARMONY.

(By Marion Hale)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—No matter how pretty the blouse, no matter how nice the hat, the beauty's lost, all lost, if there isn't some harmonizing element.

As for instance this Idaire hat and scarf and Garbo blouse—there's a hint of Russian about each of them, so they look as if they were made for each other!

The hat is a clever tricorn, braided in conventional design, smart of line and vastly becoming to the "rather round face."

The blouse—hand-dyed silk and hand-made—is a decorative affair, colorful itself and touched up with a bit of Russian peasant embroidery.

The neck, instead of hooking or attorney ties with self color silken ties finished with fascinating little balls.

LETTERS TO LOVERS AN UNFORGIVING WIFE BY WINONA WILCOX

For the sake of her child, the wife of a disloyal husband is often expected to forgive the past. Though many try, few succeed, for terrible is the ordeal.

Consider the following graphic bit of evidence concerning one wife's struggle to forgive. In this letter layers of psychology are revealed to any student of the human mind and behavior.

"Three years ago my husband found a woman he loved better than me and he broke all his vows. After I discovered the truth, he promised to live like a gentleman, but last summer he became infatuated with a third woman. He had to beg my forgiveness again and he made the usual promises.

"I said I would forgive him. He has been devoted to me since that time, but somehow I have lost all confidence in him.

"There are times when I think I hate him, times when I wish he would go away, out of my sight forever.

"And then when he is sick, and once when he was hurt in an auto accident, I think how dreary my life would be if I never had him.

"He was very sick recently. I thought that my chance for revenge had come. I decided not to take care of him and he needed a great deal of care. But of course my conscience would not let me neglect him, no matter how cruelly he had wronged me.

"I go through the round of wifely duties with some courage, but I never can love my husband as I once did. He seems to think I can.

"Sometimes when he puts his arms around me I shiver at his touch. I see the other woman in my place. I start to run my fingers through his hair. I remember that another woman has done the same. I shrink away from him.

"I have tried hard to forgive and forget the past, but it comes into my mind like a flash of lightning when he makes love to me. I dwell upon his treachery, and sometimes I am sorely tempted to take my life.

"But I have two children. I am not yet 30. I am prettier than I used to be. And I do so crave a little genuine love from a real man. I so need the comfort of a true man's strength. I cannot leave him for I am not qualified to support my children.

"My husband swears that he loves me—but he has lied about it once too often. He loves himself, and any woman who will flatter his egotism.

"How can I end this craving to be loved?

"What can I do to make life worth while?"

Part of this letter might have been written by almost any wife of almost any faithless husband. It has been printed in this series as of more importance to men than to women. It is a rare revelation of the feelings that move the unforbearing wife.

For every moment of happiness a husband finds in an extramarital romance, his wife pays in nights of weeping, in the throes of outraged faith, in the travail of just jealousy.

All his careless joy is at the cost of her sorrow—a sorrow which she cannot end by any effort of the will.

These are some of the mysteries about a woman's heart which men should know.

J. HARRY AKER WILL APPEAR

JOINT SESSION IS HELD BY METHODIST SOCIETIES.

A joint meeting was held yesterday afternoon for the Woman's Missionary Society and the Belle Bennett Missionary Society of the Polk Street Methodist Church, beginning at 3 o'clock in the church annex.

An outstanding feature of the afternoon's program was an address on "Social Service," by Rev. S. W. Hayne, pastor of the church. A short business session followed the regular meeting.

and many business matters of importance were discussed and settled, while later a social hour was held.

IF YOU ARE WELL BREED.

You will never invite a wife to a social function without her husband or a husband without his wife, unless the occasion is a stag party.

You will, in inviting two unmarried sisters to a social event, unless the invitation is to the elder and include in it the younger.

You will always answer an invitation to a dinner, luncheon, breakfast or theatre party within 24 hours.

You will send your visiting card enclosed in an envelope if you are unable personally to attend an afternoon tea or reception.

ROTARY DIRECTORS AND WIVES ENTERTAINED.

The board of directors of the Rotary Club and their wives were entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross D. Rogers, 1914 Harrison Street.

The early hours of the evening were given over to business, and later an informal social period was enjoyed in the prettily appointed guest rooms, which were appropriately decorated with emblems of the holiday season, during which a tempting refreshment course was served.
